

Additional Videos, Article, and Resources:

- Lake Erie Waterkeeper: Advocacy organization with historical Overview of the Maumee basin and efforts to protect it, plus Take Action options:

<http://www.lakeeriewaterkeeper.org>

- Educational video: Maumee River's dissolved phosphorus output leads to Lake Erie algal blooms, Ellen Ewing from the National Center for Water Quality Research explains how dissolved phosphorus creates algal blooms in Lake Erie

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=zwlsg0aahHA>

- KQED Quest, “Millions depend on Lake Erie for drinking water and recreation. It's also a vital fishery. But it has a long history of environmental damage, and that continues today with a resurgence of toxic algal blooms. Farmers are teaming up with researchers to try and understand why agriculture is now the leading cause of Lake Erie's recent algal blooms and what can be done to fix it.”

Battling the Bloom: Lake Erie

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=gMwQaHtK904>

- Also, visit the Michigan Seagrant website to explore a great collection of resources:

<http://www.miseagrant.umich.edu/>